Music festival adds second stage

[P1] Organisers of a music festival on Tolan have added a second stage after tickets sold faster than expected. The new stage will host smaller acts and local bands, with a gap of an hour between sets to avoid crowding.

[P2] The festival will run for three days in a meadow outside the main town. Camping is included in the ticket, and shuttle buses will run between the site and the town centre until midnight.

[P3] Organisers asked visitors to bring refillable water bottles and to leave glass containers at home. A quiet area has been set aside for families, and a team of volunteers will patrol the campsite overnight.
